DEPARTMENTAL ACTIVITIES IN THE PAST 5 YEARS

Extracurricular activities involve a wide range of recreations that students can engage in beyond their regular academic curriculum. These can include arts, music, sports, debate, discussions, community service, and various clubs or organisations. Extra-curricular activities can help to boost a student's academic performance, develop valuable skills, and make your one's resume or curriculum vitae more competitive. Also, development of personality is one of the key features of teaching the subject of Sociology. The department since long is indulged in social and extra-curricular activities for holistic development of the students. These include visit to the old age home, visiting the beggars, visiting central jail, celebrating gatherings like fresher's/welcome gathering, farewell (of students or a teacher), conduction of memorial lecture series, connecting with the nature through the means of picnics, etc.

One of the best things done by the department is visiting old age home and central jail. This has enabled our children to mingle with the elderly people, how they came to this place and consequences behind this situation. Students participated in the discussions healthily and counselled the elderly people. They also got to know that the coming of old age people at this place has two reasons behind this: one is after the marriage and the other is after the retirement of parents from their service. By the extra-ordinary efforts of the department and students, one of the old age men, Shri Krishna Das Soni was counselled for return to home. The department got to know that he was returned to his daughter's home, but the present situation is unknown to us. On the other hand, central jail offers the students to understand the reason behind the crime, criminals and their mind-set and also how they are taken care in the jail.

Here are few glimpses and captures from various extra-curricular activities conducted in and by the department:
